2. In terms of the above said Public Notices, Import licences have also been issued for spare parts of earth-moving machinery and spare parts of construction machinery [S. No. 63(5)(ii)(a)/V]. One of the items permitted for import under this head is 'Petrol starting engines' as are not available indigenously. As the trade is already aware the Petrol starting engines permitted as spare parts under this provision are those meant for replacement purposes only and having regard to the equipment which they have to service, these engines have necessarily to conform to a minimum output of 15 BHP, suitably designed for starting the Prime mover diesel engines fitted to the main Earth-moving and Construction equipment, and be equipped with suitable accessories for mounting on the main equipment and for coupling to the prime mover diesel engines. In the circumstances, the import of engines of specifications other than those mentioned above against the aforesaid licences, will be treated as unauthorised by the Customs Authorities.
